In February we observe the birthday of our 16th President, Abraham Lincoln. One of the many virtues he possessed was the habit of thrift. In fact, he advocated this great American habit in these words: "Teach economy. That is one of the first and highest virtues. It begins with saving money." Your government has provided one of the best methods ever devised for saving. It is simple in operation—enroll NOW for the purchase of Savings Bonds where you work, or if self-employed, the Bond-A-Month Plan at your bank.

Mongoloid Tribes Cost Columbus To America

Most historians credit either Christopher Columbus or Americus Vespucius with the discovery of America in the 15th Century A.D. But the modern ethnologist—that erudite fellow who specializes in tracing the origin, classification, and relationship of races—has other ideas.

He favors the theory that America was discovered in the dim, distant ages before 20,000 B.C., by Mongoloid tribesmen from Northeastern Asia. The peopling of the Americas began in prehistoric times, when desperate Asiatics, driven by hunger and cold, crossed the Bering Straits to America. "Plunging bravely through the vast forests, they lived on roots and berries and the meat of wild animals. Finally, they even ventured out upon the broad grasslands to follow wandering herds of bison. Gradually, in the course of centuries, they spread over the Americas."

Tibetian tribes with a remarkable resemblance to the American Indian, have been found on the southern slopes of the Himalaya Mountains. In physique, dress, behavior, and even in the intonation of their language, the similarity is undeniable.

French Forest Assumes Entirely New Shape

The ghosts of Bourbon monarchs and musketeers will rein up their mounts this spring before an odd sign in a forest near Paris. The signpost will read SHAPE — Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe.

Behind the sign, on a 60-acre tract a few miles from Versailles, sprawling barracks and an office building with 18 wings will grow like spring wildflowers into General Eisenhower's European "Pentagon."

As a permanent site for SHAPE, the French government has set aside an unused portion of a presidential shooting preserve in the famous Forest of Marly. Here, backed by rolling saucer-rim ridges where kings and courtiers once rode to the hunting horn, the problems of Europe's defense in the 1950's will be hammered out.

Russian Railroads

Russian railroads have managed to set the world's record for rail road accidents. In 1934, Lazar Kaganovich, then Commisar of Transportation, released these startling figures: 62,000 accidents occurred on the Russian railway system that year. Hundreds of lives were lost and thousands were injured, but Comrade Kaganovich passed over these matters lightly in his report. What worried him was the loss of 7,000 locomotives and 64,000 cars destroyed. Only 19,000 new cars were placed in service during the same year, Comrade K. wailed.

Maine Syrup Production

It takes between forty and fifty gallons of raw sap normally to make one gallon of syrup, and during the evaporating stage the producer must be constantly alert to see that the liquid is drawn at the "exact" moment to meet federally-regulated color standards that will bring him top financial returns. Maine's maple syrup production normally runs around 60,000 gallons, with no sugar adding another 15,600 pounds to the crop total.

Grateful America

In remembrance of the distinguished Marquis de Lafayette Americans have named after him eight counties, more than a dozen towns and cities, and countless streets, parks, squares, and schools. Children saved their pennies and, in 1900, presented France with an equestrian statue of their hero, which was placed in the Square du Carrousel near the Louvre.

Tin Cannons

Tin in the first cannons helped to break the grip of feudalism in the Middle Ages. Kings and commoners ate from dishes of pewter, a tin alloy. English tinners were so highly regarded they had their own parliament and courts. The science of photography, born on pewter sheets, grew up on tintypes. The "tin can" (tin-coated sheet steel) made armies independent of the countryside for rations. It built the cities of the world by freeing men from the chore of growing their own food.

Tiger Still A Terror

Not by legend alone has the great cat of Asia been feared and respected. In the jungles of India and mountains of Mongolia, across Burma, Indochina, Malaya, Sumatra and Java, the tiger still kills men. Around Singapore, tigers were once so numerous that they claimed an average of one human victim a day in the city's outskirts. Jungle villages in Thailand are still terrorized by man-eaters.

Pockmarks on Moon

The pockmarks on the face of the moon, astronomers believe, are due to bomblike hits by meteorites. The theory is that meteors approaching the bare surface of the moon are not cooled off and relatively slowed down by an atmosphere envelope such as protects the earth.

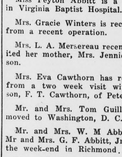
Club Notes

Mrs. B. G. Anderson
Home Demonstration Agent



Forty - one members representing eleven of the seventeen home demonstration clubs of the county attended the District Federation meeting at Powhatan on Wednesday. There were 425 members present from 13 counties. We of Appomattox County were very proud of the efficient and gracious manner in which Elisabeth Carr, who is president of District III, presided at this meeting. She was lovely to look at in her navy costume with white accents. She wore a corsage at the shoulder, presented by her club women of Appomattox County, as an expression of their love and appreciation of her good work.

We are grateful to Mr. H. A. Torrence for taking time off from his business of farming to take his wife and four other club members to this meeting. We feel he is a part of our district meeting, as each year he makes it possible for four or five members from his community to attend.

The program was very interesting and inspiring. Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, president of Longwood College, spoke on Family Responsibility in Today's World, and Miss Maude E. Wallace spoke in the afternoon.

One of the highlights of the program was special music presented by Powhatan High School Glee Club. Wished for each member!
